

To whom it may concern:

I can not think of a person more suitable for a high-level position in Marketing and Communications as I have seen the work Sophia Mathews is capable of in the 4+ years of knowing her. Sophia's leadership and determination allowed her and her team to complete the daunting task of transferring an entire school system's website foundation (over 2000 pages of content) to another platform in just about three week's time. Her background and knowledge in IT make her more than fit for any role, but her involvement in the schools and community is what really makes Sophia stand out. Constant interactions with students, teachers, and school administrators, often volunteering her free time, has given her insight on what our schools want and need and I would trust no one more than Sophia to give vision to any organization from the bottom up.
